EQUITY OVER EVERYTHING

Diversity, equity and inclusion are embedded into every facet of DMZ. We strive to create a more diverse and inclusive innovation ecosystem, combat longstanding systemic issues rooted in discrimination, and contribute to the growth in the number of companies led by underrepresented entrepreneurs.

Through DMZ's Black Innovation Program and Women Innovation Program, Black and women founders can tap into an additional layer of benefits when they join DMZ's programs.

DMZ's Black Innovation Programs (BIP) are first-in-Canada programs that provide startups led by Black entrepreneurs with the strengthening support of a top university-based incubator network. Black-identifying founders that come to DMZ receive additional opportunities and specialized support like grant funding, mentorship opportunities, a peer network, exclusive events and connections to investors dedicated to supporting Black-led innovation – on top of the standard programming all DMZ founders get.

DMZ's Women Innovation Programs provide a full spectrum of startup support to women founders at every stage of the entrepreneurial journey, from the ideation phase to the scaling phase. Women-identifying founders that come to DMZ receive additional opportunities and specialized support to accelerate their growth, like exclusive community events, mentorship opportunities, a peer network and connections to investors dedicated to supporting women-led innovation – on top of the standard programming all DMZ founders get.

Frequently asked questions and misconceptions.

What does DMZ stand for?

DMZ is no longer an acronym for Digital Media Zone. It's simply referred to as 'DMZ'.

Is DMZ just for students?

DMZ is not just for students. In fact, the median age for an entrepreneur is 34 years old.

Is DMZ an incubator or accelerator?

DMZ is a tech incubator. It has implemented a model that fuels a startup pipeline which includes:

- Launchpad - For aspiring entrepreneurs who want to build a business and need support getting started.
- Pre-Incubator - For founders who have an early prototype and are ready to validate their business idea, establish an MVP, and ramp up for launch.
- Incubator - For pre-seed and seed-stage startups that have a full-time founder, early traction, and proven product-market fit.

Does DMZ take equity from startups?

Startups do not need to pay membership fees for the Incubator, but rather DMZ takes a 2.5% equity stake in common shares from startups in exchange for programming. Any and all returns on this equity go back to Toronto Metropolitan University, a charitable organization, to support future DMZ operations for startups. DMZ looks for exceptional founders to support on their journey to build, grow, and scale high-calibre tech companies. Having an equity stake in companies further reinforces DMZ's commitment to helping founders see long-term success.

Does DMZ focus on a specific tech vertical?

No, DMZ is sector-agnostic, though we have a preference towards B2B or B2B2C business models.
